Aly Zach grew up on a small family farm in Humphry, Nebraska. After serving in the army and getting married, he and his wife Marian moved to Rosholt, South Dakota, where Aly worked as a carpenter with his brother Andy for three years. The couple then moved to Wahpeton with their young family in 1951, where Aly continued his carpentry work. After working for several local contractors over the years, Aly started his own business and founded Zach Homes in 1968. He became an expert carpenter, perfecting his craft with hand-made cabinets and skilled finish work. Aly even drafted his own house plans and blueprints. A home built by Aly is still recognizable today and certainly stands the test of time.

Charlie, Aly's son, began working for his dad in 1977. Working alongside his mentor and father, Charlie quickly learned the ropes of the job site from Aly. A natural carpenter, Charlie continued the company's tradition of building quality homes while paying great attention to detail. When Aly began to winter in Brownsville, Texas, he employed a local crew and continued the tradition of Zach Homes down south. Aly's infamous tagline, "Border to Border Homes," was prominently displayed on his pickup truck. Father and son continued to work side-by-side until Aly's retirement in 2003. Charlie took over the reins of the company in the spring of 1989.

Charlie's son Andrew is a 3rd generation builder. His interest in construction began as a young child when he spent time pounding nails alongside his dad and grandpa at the job site while still in grade school. Throughout high school and college, Andrew continued to work for Charlie. He now serves as foreman of the crew and recently obtained his own contractor's license.
